ETHICS FOR MEDIATORS AND COUNSEL: MEDIATING UNDER THE SINGAPORE CONVENTION

As the global legal community embraces the Singapore Convention, the rise in mediation as a preferred method of dispute resolution is undeniable. This paradigm shift brings a pressing question: Are we fully prepared to tackle the ethical dilemmas unique to mediation?

Our eminent panel at the 18th Annual Fordham Conference on International Arbitration and Mediation will dissect this issue, engaging with complex scenarios to spotlight the ethical considerations for mediators and counsel alike.
